

Computational geometric methods for suspension of inertial particles by Ben Tapley

Abstract

Geometric numerical method for simulating suspensions of spherical and non spherical particles with Stokes drag is proposed. The methods combines divergence-free interpolation of the fluid velocity field with a splitting integrator that preserves the sum of the Lyapunov spectrum while replicating the centrifuge effect of the exact solution.